

Vows of Vengeance

by Alison Reid

Five years ago, Lincoln Spokes vowed to destroy the man who ruined his family.

Now, he's finally close enough to deliver the final blow.

Angela Marsden has watched her father's empire crumble piece by piece under Lincoln's ruthless control. The billionaire tycoon has dismantled everything her family built with cold precision, leaving nothing untouched by his vengeance. But when Angela walks into Lincoln's office to confront the man she once loved, she discovers something even more devastating than his hatred.

She is still his wife.

Their marriage was supposed to be over long ago—a reckless, passionate mistake made when she was young enough to believe in forever. But Lincoln never divorced her. And beneath the ice in his silver-grey eyes still burns the same dangerous obsession that once consumed them both.

Angela should hate him for what he's done.

For the lies.

For the betrayal.

For turning her heart into collateral damage in his war against her father.

But every touch still ignites memories she cannot escape, and every encounter drags her deeper into a battle where love and vengeance are hopelessly tangled together.

Because Lincoln Spokes didn't just want revenge.

He wanted her.

And this time, he has no intention of letting her go.
