

Cautious Hearts

A Trust-After-Heartbreak Romance Collection

In Cautious Hearts, three emotionally charged romances explore what happens when desire collides with fear—and love demands courage from hearts still guarded by the past. Love once broke them. Trust is the risk they're not sure they can take again.

Blueprints of the Heart — She's spent her life holding everything together. He's built his world on never needing anyone. Sophie Highland doesn't have time for dreams. At twenty-five, she's drowning in responsibility—working two jobs, caring for her chronically ill mother, and fighting for a future she's not sure she'll ever reach. Love? That's a luxury she can't afford. Trust? Something she lost the day her father walked away. But when she lands a life-changing internship at Prescott Design Group, everything begins to shift. Because of him. Damian Prescott is brilliant, ruthless, and completely untouchable. As a billionaire CEO, he's built an empire on control—and a reputation for never letting anyone get too close. Relationships are temporary. Emotions are inconvenient. And love? Not part of the plan. Until Sophie. She's different. Quietly strong. Fiercely independent. Impossible to ignore. What starts as curiosity turns into something far more dangerous. Because the more Damian wants her... the more Sophie wants to run. But Sophie's life isn't just complicated—it's fragile. With her mother's health declining and her past still shaping every choice she makes, falling for a man like Damian could cost her everything. And Damian has never had to fight for a woman who refuses to be his. Now he'll have to decide—is she just another distraction... or the one woman worth changing everything for?

Hidden Gem — He doesn't trust women. She refuses to be seen. Neither of them expected... each other. Dominic Childs is ruthless, powerful, and completely untouchable. After a devastating betrayal by the one woman he almost trusted, he's built his world on control—where emotions are weaknesses and relationships are strictly off-limits. So, when his mother insists on hiring a new personal assistant, Dominic has one rule: no women. Amanda Prentice is everything he doesn't expect. Quiet. Efficient.

Invisible. Hiding behind oversized glasses and shapeless clothes, she's determined to be valued for her mind—not her beauty. But Amanda has secrets of her own... because beneath the frumpy disguise is a woman who could bring even the most controlled man to his knees. Working side by side, the tension between them builds—slow, undeniable, dangerous. A touch that lingers too long. A look that says too much. A connection neither of them is ready for. But when the truth about Amanda begins to surface... and Dominic's past threatens to repeat itself... will he risk everything for a woman he was never meant to notice? Or will fear destroy the one thing that could save them both?

Trust in Time — A sweeping second-chance romance about love, betrayal, and the one man she never forgot. Four years ago, Clair Dawson walked away from everything. From her father's luxurious Seattle estate. From the life waiting for her there. And from Adam Cross—the older man she had secretly loved for years. On the night before she left for college, Clair overheard a conversation that shattered her heart. One that convinced her Adam was betraying both her and her father with another woman. So, she disappeared without goodbye. Without explanation. Without ever learning the truth. Now, after graduating law school with honours, Clair is finally home. Older. Stronger. Determined to leave the past behind. But Adam is still there. Still devastatingly handsome. Still dangerously controlled. And still looking at her like she was the one thing he never forgot. The attraction between them reignites instantly, hotter and more impossible than ever. But Adam is no longer willing to let silence stand between them—and the secrets Clair built her life around are beginning to unravel. Because the night that destroyed them may not have been what she believed at all. And some loves refuse to fade... No matter how much time passes.
